

I like belonging to a credit union because I know that the money it earns comes back to me in the form of lower fees, higher dividends, and better services. It's not going to a stock holder or paid board member.